Where To Study
Higher Certificates
with a GED®

Higher Certificates open the door to degree studies and fast-track you towards career success. Find out how to study further with a GED® and how to navigate a pathway to a degree course if this is your goal.

Many students complete their GED® at the age of 17. While their peers are doing matric in their 18th year, young GED® graduates have the advantage of studying a Higher Certificate course through a tertiary institution and obtaining a full career qualification that they can add to their CV.

After completion of a Higher Certificate course (at NQF level 5), a student may be eligible for exemption from Universities South Africa (USAf) by virtue of academic qualifications and may apply for admission to a degree course at a South African university.

Another option is to enroll in a Diploma course (NQF 6) which you can usually do with a GED® alone.

At Boston City Campus and Business College you can enroll directly into a Degree programme if you meet the admission criteria with your GED alone. No SAQA certificate is required and Boston will handle your application to USAf for exemption. Read more at Boston Accepts GED Graduates for Degrees.

What are Higher Certificates?

Higher Certificate study courses are generally vocational training programs. The course material is industry-oriented and career-specific. The practical skills you will learn will help you improve your performance in the workplace.

Higher Certificates help you to improve your level of education and develop skills. They will equip you for work in your chosen career field and may enable you to enroll for even higher qualifications.

Higher Certificates have replaced many foundation programs at colleges and universities. They offer students the opportunity to master essential skills needed for further educational success while achieving a career-advancing qualification at the same time.

Instead of wasting time on matric subjects that students might have little interest in, they can get laser-focused training that equips them for their specific careers and catapults them towards their future goals.

Higher Certificates as a pathway to a degree

In South Africa, if you complete the GED® (NQF 4) or a matric without exemption and then follow it with a Higher Certificate course that is on the NQF level 5 and is a minimum of 120 credits, you may be eligible to apply for complete exemption from USAf. Exemption from USAf is a requirement for admission to a degree course in South Africa.

The complete exemption would enable you to apply for admission to a degree course, provided that you meet the entrance requirements of the university and the faculty that offers the specific degree you wish to pursue.

There are no guarantees, so please always check and contact the institution and faculty of your choice to ensure that the route you are pursuing will achieve your end goals.*

The benefits of studying with Online GED Prep™

There are a variety of exciting pathways for GED® graduates to continue their education and get skilled and equipped for career success.

Some of the many benefits of studying with Online GED Prep™ are:

- the GED® is recognized and accepted by tertiary institutions
- study in the safety and security of your own home or office
- flexibility and convenience
- study at the time and place of your choice
  - develop technical skills
  - looks good on your CV as it indicates commitment, motivation and perseverance
  - international recognition

*Disclaimer: Although every effort has been taken to provide accurate and correct information, Online GED Prep™ shall never be liable for losses or other damages that may result from inaccuracy or incompleteness of information on this website about universities, colleges, or their requirements.

University: Study further with a GED®

Yes – you can study at college or university with a GED®.

Students can write the GED® at age 17 and then start online degrees, diplomas, or higher certificate courses at 17, or take steps to be eligible for South African university degrees by age 18. Read more below about how it all works.

The GED® is recognized in South Africa.

*SAQA (the South African Qualifications Authority) has evaluated the GED® and found the National Senior Certificate or NQF 4 as its closest comparable qualification.

NQF refers to the National Qualifications Framework.

An infographic of the NQF and different educational options within the South African educational system in 2017.

GED® graduates can pursue the following pathways to further study at tertiary level. (The usual requirement for admission is shown in brackets.)

- 1. Online University Degrees at Boston City Campus
- 2. NQF 5 Higher Certificate (GED)
- 3. NQF 6 Diploma (GED)
- 4. Degree at an Online Overseas University (GED)
- 5. Degree at an Offline Overseas University (GED or GED+SAT)
- 6. Degree at a South African University (GED + NQF 5, except Boston)

1. Online University Degrees at Boston City Campus and Business College

Following an announcement in October 2021, Boston is now the most GED-friendly tertiary institution in South Africa. The registrar, Ruan Venter announced that Boston will accept GED graduates who meet the admission criteria (without a SAQA Certificate) and that Boston will handle and support the student's application for exemption from USAf.

For more information please read the information and view the webinar recording at Boston Accepts GED Graduates for Degrees.

2. Higher Certificate (NQF 5) Courses

These are one-year, career-oriented courses offered by colleges and universities. According to SAQA, the admission requirement is an NQF 4 qualification. After completion of an NQF 5 course a student may be eligible for exemption from Universities South Africa (USAf), by virtue of academic qualifications and may apply for admission to a degree course at a South African university.

See more detail below at point number 4.

3. Diploma (NQF 6) Courses

A diploma course is usually a two-year or sometimes a three-year course. According to the SAQA website, the admission requirement is an NQF 4 qualification. (Always check for additional requirements with the individual institution of your choice too.) After completion of a diploma, a student may be job-ready or they may apply for admission to a degree course if they choose. (Refer to point number 4 below.)

4. Degree at Any Offline Overseas University

The GED® is accepted at many universities around the world. Every university has international admission requirements to allow for the global mobility of students.

Most universities accept American credentials such as a GED® or high school diploma plus a prescribed score on the SAT college admission test.

For example:

- 98% of US universities accept students with a GED.
- 100% of universities in New Zealand accept students with a GED + prescribed score on the SAT or ACT tests.

Here is the GED Testing Service's list of international universities that accept students with a GED®. There are sure to be others. Always check the international admission requirements and request confirmation from the university of your choice in advance.

5. Degree (NQF 7) at a South African University

A candidate must have qualified for exemption from Universities South Africa (USAf) in order to be admitted to a degree course at a South African university.

A degree is usually a 3- or 4-year course of study, ranked at NQF 7.

The following are possible categories of exemption:

6.1 Complete exemption by virtue of academic qualifications

6.1.1 If a student achieves an NQF 5 (Higher Certificate) or NQF 6 (diploma) qualification, then they should qualify for a complete exemption.

6.1.2 if a student completes the first-year degree at a recognized overseas university, either online or offline, then they should qualify for the complete exemption.

The requirements for the option detailed in point 6.1 above are prescribed in the Higher Education Act 101 of 1997 in the quotation in the quoted text on the following page, specifically paragraph (c):

Certificate of complete exemption by virtue of academic and professional certificates.

The Committee of Principals shall issue a certificate of complete exemption to – a graduate-by-examination of a university or other institution approved by the Committee of Principals; or a person who has passed examinations at a university or other institution approved by the Committee of Principals and who satisfied all the requirements of a qualification which in the opinion of the Committee of Principals is equivalent to an approved university degree; or

(b)

(c)

a person who has passed examinations at a university or other institution approved by the Committee of Principals, which represent a minimum of, or the equivalent of a minimum of 120 credits, registered at level 5, or higher, on the National Qualifications Framework of the South African Qualifications Authority; or

(d)

a medical or dental practitioner duly registered to practice as such under the provisions of the Medical, Dental and Supplementary Health Services Professions Act, 1974 (Act 56 of 1974).”

---

Since each faculty of each university may set its own admission requirements above the minimum requirements set by USAf, you should always contact them in advance to confirm that you will be eligible for admission to your chosen course, as not all universities in South Africa are “GED- friendly.”

6.2 Senatorial discretionary exemption

Some colleges and universities give students an admission test, and if they pass, they get accepted on the basis of the dean's discretion. AFDA is an example. See here: AFDA Entrance Exam Usually you would need to motivate why the university should give you senatorial discretionary exemption e.g. a student who has high achievement in something else, like grade 7 in music exams or some other qualification, skill or talent relevant to the degree for which they are applying. This would be granted on a case-by-case basis and would require a process of consideration. Some GED® graduates have been granted exemption in this way.

6.3 Mature age exemption

If you are age 23 or older you may qualify for exemption – but you must have a matric or alternative equivalent school leaving certificate.

6.4 Recognition of prior learning (RPL)

All higher education institutions in South African must have a policy and procedure to assess prospective students' RPL to see if they can enter the courses with a reasonable chance of success. RPL provides a way for the university to acknowledge your knowledge and skills gained via non-formal education and/or work experience, in order to obtain admission towards a qualification. It may also include candidates lacking the minimum requirements for entry into a formal learning programme (e.g. matriculation endorsement).

PLEASE NOTE: You MUST check with the colleges or universities and specific faculty of your choice that they will accept the GED® credential with one of the categories of exemption. Many degrees and courses have additional requirements which you will also have to fulfill, no matter what NQF 4 or Grade 12 credential you have.

As with any matric option, there is no guarantee that a GED® graduate will be issued with exemption from USAf, nor that a university will accept his/her application.

The benefits of studying your GED with Educ8 SA

There are a variety of exciting pathways for GED® graduates to continue their education and get skilled and equipped for career success.

Some of the many benefits of studying with Educ8 SA are:

- The GED® is recognised and accepted by tertiary institutions o study in the safety and security of your own home or office o flexibility and convenience

Online Diplomas with a GED

After completing your GED®, you can consider furthering your education by studying a diploma course – either online or offline through a tertiary college or university.

The following online diplomas are offered by various accredited South African distance education colleges and universities.

There are a growing number of universities, colleges, and other tertiary institutions which now offer their courses online and/or at their campuses.

Check out our growing list of places where our past GED graduates are studying or where you could study too!

What is a Diploma?

A diploma course provides tertiary-level, career-oriented training to prepare you for work in a specific field. The course is a combination of academic training as well as specialized, practical skills required in that industry or profession. Diploma courses may be offered on a full-time or part-time basis and may vary in length from one to three years.

National Diplomas (NQF Level 5)

A national diploma can be obtained after completing a senior certificate or trade certificate. It is recognized in South Africa, but may not be recognized when applying for a job in another country.

Higher Diplomas (NQF Level 6)

A higher diploma can be nationally and/or internationally recognized, depending on the establishment. Always check the accreditation of the specific course you wish to study.

Students who successfully complete a National Diploma course can usually enroll for a Bachelor of Technology (BTech) degree in the same field of study.

What is the difference between a diploma and a degree?

With a degree qualification, it is first necessary to qualify for exemption from USAf (Universities South Africa). The emphasis is on an academic approach to a specific field of study or a profession. In some fields, a degree qualification is required in order to be licensed to practice a specific profession. Degree programs are also offered part-time or full-time. Certain programs also require industry training or work experience in that industry.

Always check that the course you choose is correctly accredited and will be accepted in the field or industry you intend to work.***
